

MRSA Infections: Be part of the solution.

Recent data show that Americans visit the doctor approximately 12 million times each year to get checked for suspected Staph or MRSA skin infection. Studies also demonstrate that MRSA spreads quickly through hospitals and clinics, threatening your patients, your staff, and your bottom line through potential liability.

MRSA spreads quickly, and is considered a "superbug" - resistant to most antibiotics. Treating MRSA is difficult - the best treatment is prevention.

Alarming, traditional prevention methods such as cleaning surfaces with disinfectant cleaner are having little effect, and some believe we are simply increasing resistance in strains of MRSA - actually making the problem worse.

Genera - part of a comprehensive MRSA strategy.

At Genera, we're proud of the many relationships we have with physicians, researchers and health care management professionals. You have guided us in the development of products, and many of our "customers" have become valued friends and advisors. When discussing the MRSA crises with you, we realized we can be a critical part of your MRSA strategy.
